Dominio de Unx Rosé de Saignée

Since 1914, the winegrowers of San Martin de Unx have carefully cultivated the Grenache variety in a unique mountain setting, respecting the environment to the utmost and producing wines with their own unique identity. In these areas covered by scrub ecosystems of brushland vegetation (thyme, rosemary, juniper and Kermes oak), the Grenache grapes come into their own and develop their unique characteristics.

Dominio de Unx Rosé de saignée is the result of a project to make light-coloured rosé wines using the traditional Navarrese "saignée" or bleeding method. We have worked with two varieties of Grenache grapes, which are macerated before fermentation, to reflect the special character of our terroir in a different kind of wine

Our Tasting

Visual : Bright pale colour, with light purple hints.

Olfactory : Intense yet subtle and delicate aroma, with strong hints of red fruits (strawberries and raspberries) combined with the aroma of white flowers. Finish characterized by elegant aniseed notes.

Gustatory : Sweet, unctuous and well-balanced on the palate with hints of fresh red fruits and a spicy finish. Smooth with perfectly balanced acidity. Long and very pleasant aftertaste.

Pairing : It is perfect with cold meats, salads, stir-fried vegetables, Mediterranean-style food (rice, pasta and fish) and Asian food.
